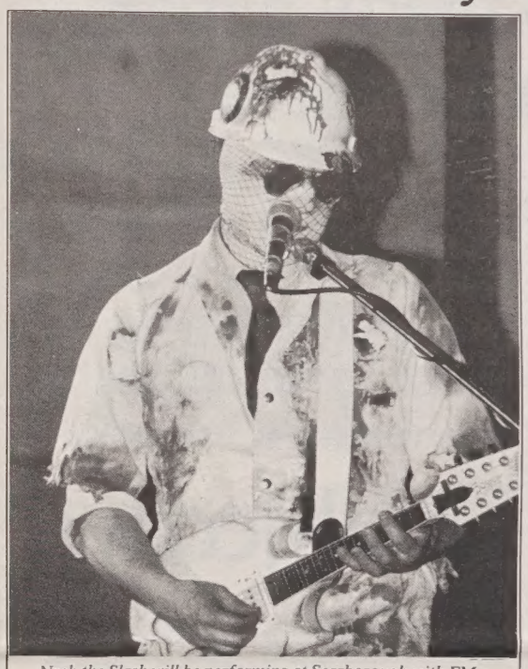
3 Concerts for $3



Nash the Slash will be performing at Scarborough with FM.

By Barbara Lim

There will be three bands performing for the price of one ticket at the SAC sponsored concert this Friday at Scarborough Campus Meeting Place. Featured will be FM, Nash the Slash, and Regatta.

The big line up was given to Scarborough by the Agent in order to compensate for the cancellation of The Arrows and other numerous problems with the booking.

SAC Scarborough Chairman, Tomas Schmidt said "We were lucky to get three acts for the price of one."

"The agency had to make it up to us somehow, or else they would be blacklisted with the University community" added Schmidt.

FM has a new single and video just released. Nash the Slash is considered a favourite among the students. Regatta is 1985's Chum Homegrown winner.

Fourth year Math student, Wanda Lee anxious to see the concert said, "it will be great to see three bands for only three dollars."

Although ticket sales have been slow, SAC expects to sell out by Friday. The ticket prices are $3 in advance and $4 at the door and can be purchased at the SAC Info. desk.

Campus injury rate double average

By Salim Rashid

Scarborough has the highest injury related accidents among the Colleges of the University of Toronto. The Campus has a rate of 3.4 injuries per 100 employees, almost double the U of T average of 1.8%.

This problem was discussed at the Joint Health and Safety Committee of Scarborough Campus at their first meeting last Thursday.

During the past year, Scarborough Campus has had an increasing amount of work related injuries. To date, there have been six cases of injury requiring medical aid and ten cases where the injured party had to take leave.

The Joint Health and Safety Committee was formed to improve previously inadequate systems for the implementation of safety procedures.

The primary function of the committee will therefore be to evaluate and recommend changes to existing procedures to ensure a safer environment for all.

Items discussed at the meeting ranged from the establishment of first-aid stations to the development of a communications network for the control of any hazardous situation.

Professor Rorke Bryan, co-chairman of the group, stressed that meeting the legal requirements for safety will be a priority.

The committee, headed by Ken Wesley and Bryan, will be meeting early in the next term to discuss and recommend procedural policies in compliance with both the Workman's Compensation Act and the Occupational Health and Safety Act.

Adopt a village

By Vangie Nitsopoulos

Scarborough Campus students have decided to partner the College with the Nigerian village of Filingue in the hopes of providing aid for the development of the village.

The program has been named Partners In Development and was modelled after the St. George Campus founded program called Village Aid.

Students were made aware of the program through Doctor Gerry McGuigon, founder of the Institute for the Study and Application of Integrated Development (ISAID) and Dawn Macdonald, co-ordinator of the Toronto Village Aid program.

Partners In Development organizers Felicia Knaul and Salim Rashid are excited about the program and its possibilities.

"It's an excellent program and to be able to work in support of Doctor McGuigon's program (ISAID) is an honour," said Knaul.

To start off Partners In Development, members will be offering Adopt-A-Village posters in the Meeting Place at the Scarborough campus all this week. The posters are original renditions and donations are greatly appreciated.

The next meeting will be held this Wednesday at 5:00 in rez. I-1 and is open to anyone who is interested.

Do you know all 24 letters of the alphabet? Can you spel your name without getting it wrong?

The Underground wants only the most highly trained, skilled and talented writers, but we can't get them so you'll have to do.

This is what you get: your name in print to sent home to mom, looks good on a resume too!

This is what we get: you, as a member of the Scarborough community get to help us make The Underground an active part of the Scarborough community.

Also important: are you curious and non-partisan? Partisan and objective?

Able to wade through opinion to find the facts? Have opinions and still search for the facts?

If any of this applies to you, or even if it doesn't, come to the Underground. We will teach you to write like a live journalist. We will teach you to take abuse and to drink milk like a man.

If this appeals to you, come to Rm. H213C, The Underground office and join the gang.

Violent porn film shown in Montreal

MONTREAL (CUP) - Montreal city police are prosecuting a store that rents a violent pornographic film which purports to show the murder and dismemberment of a woman.

The film, Snuff, has been on the shelves of Five Star Video in Beaconsfield for at least three years. It made its way to Concordia University when a member of Concordia University Television rented the video during an investigation.

According to Jean-Yves St. Laurent the Montreal police director of the organized crime division, the film has been viewed by the morality squad and several crown prosecutors.

"We will proceed with the matter in court on the basis that there is sex and violence," said St. Laurent. "This case is unusual because there is much more violence than sex in the film."

According to a May 9, 1985 Supreme Court ruling only three criteria may be used to judge a film obscene; bestiality, sex with children, or sex with violence. Snuff contains no explicit sex but there are many sexual overtones in the film.

"It was a border case. There are three scenes totalling seven or eight minutes that are definitely obscene, but does that make the whole film obscene? That was the level of discussion we had," said St. Laurent.

Snuff is available on video cassettes in several Montreal stores. MPA Video, the largest video distributor in the city, was selling Snuff to video outlets for $57 as recently as November, 1984.

The film was taken off MPA'S distribution list in May 1985 for reasons that are unclear. Company executives claim the video was dropped probably becaue there was not enough demand for it.

Snuff is manufactured by Cult Video, a Los Angeles-based company about which little is known. No phone number is listed and directory assistance has no listing for the company in Los Angeles.

Beverly LaBelle, in the book Take Back the Night , reports Snuff first surfaced in 1975 shortly after the New York City police department announced they had confiscated several "underground" South American pornographic films containing actual murder footage.

"The curiosity of the regular pornography market was whetted by this police discovery and the idea of a commercialized snuff film was born," LaBelle says.

Snuff achieved notoriety because of the final five minutes of the film, where a woman is literally butchered in front of the camera.

There have been previous demonstrations against Snuff in both the U.S. and Canada. When the film showed up in Victoria in 1982 feminists rented copies of them and destroyed them. No legal action was taken.

The trial in Thunder Bay, Ontario in August, 1984 found the film obscene but there has never been a ruling in Quebec and censor laws vary from province to province.

Letters

To The Editor

Too many papers in Residence

To The Editor:

Although I am pleased to see The Underground pursuing plans to increase circulation by 33% due to increased pick up rates, and I agree the paper is producing some quality material (the Special Hallowe'en Edition was brilliant and blew away any other comical edition university paper I have ever seen) I am also somewhat surprised.

One reason mentioned for the shortage of Undergrounds was that all Scarborough residences are having the paper delivered to their doors."

Each week an unbelievable six copies are deposited at A3 where I live. Do you think our whole house is not on speaking terms?

I feel that one copy is sufficient for the household, especially since people who live in residence have access to the copies at the school. I believe one copy per residence house would cut down on the waste and free papers for others to read.

Sincerely,
David Peacock

Editor's Note: Thank you for your advice. Upon your recommendation The Underground will lower the number of copies delivered to residents in the Village from one per resident to one paper for every two people in residence.

UG Unobjective

To The Editor:

Once again The Underground has demonstrated to the students of Scarborough Campus their utter lack of journalistic objectivity and ethics.

As 'The Voice of Scarborough Campus' would it be too much to expect this supposed forum of Scarborough to provide unbiased and fair coverage? Perhaps the editorial staff of The Underground feel that students are so apathetic that they do not recognize political propaganda when they see it.

The Underground's entire approach to SCSC's proposed constitutional amendments has been an uncalled for attack on Tony McWatt. This culminated in last week's issue of The Underground and in the editor's comments to The Varsity.

I'm sorry Mr. Sarangi but I am certain of one fact, Tony McWatt did not 'wimp out.' In his open letter to the U of T community Tony details quite clearly and sincerely the reasons why he resigned. It was not a decision motivated by money, as The Underground implies.

Perhaps members of The Underground could start writing in a journalistic vein which does not deal in innuendo, suppositions and inferred meanings.

Perhaps The Underground could maybe even hint at the positive side of SCSC. But then again, maybe I'm asking for too much. Let's face it, when SCSC supposedly screws up, it's good news.

Students Care

To The Editor:

I must admit that I find it hard to understand why your paper, The Underground, has been so bitterly attacked recently, most notably in a Varsity editorial.

I have been pleasantly surprised by the paper this year. Its clean prose and social conscience distinguish it from The Underground of former years.

The Varsity's editorial is an unfair and over-emotional attack which makes up for in zest what it lacks in logic and content.

This editorial seems to imply that The Underground wanted and forced Tony McWatt's resignation. As the paper has never called for Mr. McWatt's resignation in any of the editorials I have read,it is hard to imagine how The Varsity's accusation could be true.

In exploring the reasons for his resignation in his November 18th letter in your paper, he does not indict The Underground at all.

This same editorial accuses The Underground of editorial dishonesty, but fails to give even a single example.

The Varsity also implies that The Underground "tried to silence the government." As the paper has an open letters policy and have recently printed no less than three articles written by Mr. McWatt, it is again difficult to guess to what they are referring.

The Varsity seems to be much better at innuendo than good sound reporting.

As the author of this piece seems to lack an understanding of basic grammar rules and prefers to write in sentence fragments, it might seem wise for The Varsity to put its own house in order before criticizing The Underground.

All too often, student governments, having access to large sums of student funds, abuse this privilege for self-aggrandizement. If The Underground tried to prevent this, one can hardly blame them.

Mr. McWatt stated in his November 18th letter that he felt that the majority of Scarborough's 5000 students "don't give a damn" as to the type of job he was doing.

I'm sorry, Mr. McWatt, but we do care. If we didn't, you probably would have got your precious increase.

Sincerely,

Constance Seid

Toronto Sun ridiculed

By Arnold Hitchcock

"Resolved that The Toronto Sun is the opiate of the people." was the question at the most recent Hart House Debate.

The main purpose of the debate seemed to be a humourous put down of The TorontoSun and anything vaguely to do with the working classes.

For the 'ayes' were U of T'ers Andrew Taylor and Michael McCulloch, and for the 'naes' were Adam Freedman and Bart Aronson from Yale.

Speaker T.E.W. Gough of Woodsworth College had a few amusing comments about the U of T speakers. Bart Aronson of the 'naes' said The Sun was full of poetry such as 'Ron Rocks Rome' and other great headlines full of alliteration.

The 'naes' expressed their belief that The Sun was so full of high literature that the working classes would not understand its subtle nuances, and that The Sun was for the educated elite.

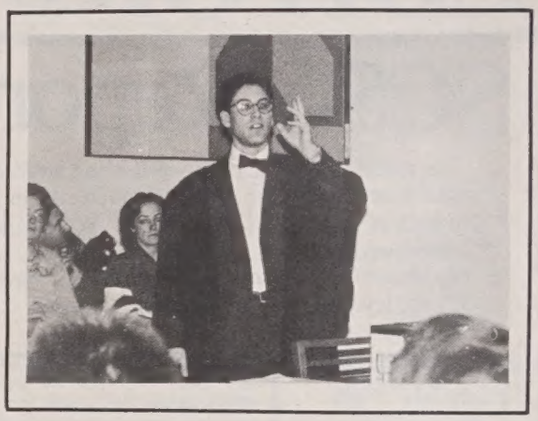
The best one liner came from Michael McCulloch, who muttered something about why The Sun only makes Sunshine Girl playing cards, and the quick witted Freedman replied "If they make a Sunshine Boys deck of cards, you'll be the joker."

Though his wit was sharp, Freedman had trouble with his ummmmmmmmms. Every sentence was punctuated with one.

The Sun was compared with other such 'Newspapers' as the New York Post, and other Murdoch publications. Taylor described The Sun as sexually titillating. He accused the paper of "crass commercialism."

Paul Godfrey, publisher of The Sun, sat through the entire debate with a smile.



Cockroaches find cosy home in Carleton Cafeteria

OTTAWA (CUP) -- Cockroaches have found a comfortable home in Carleton University's residence commons kitchen despite attempts by Saga food staff to evict them.

Dave Cole, a Carleton student living in residence, said he met his first cockroach while serving himself salad in the residence kitchen.

"I felt this thing climbing up my arm and looked down and it was a cockroach," he said.

Staff at Saga foods who refused to be identified said they've also noticed an increase in the number of cockroaches. One Saga employee said cockroaches have been sighted floating in the heating tubs that keep food warm.

"I remember one time when I was filling a plate and a cockroach ran right across the counter. I almost died, I was so embarrassed," said the employee.

The cockroaches are frightening other more squeamish staff away from the kitchens at night.

"I walked into the dish room one night to bring in some dirty dishes and I turned on the light and saw four or five scampering across the floor...One girl told me not to go in when it was dark because it was 'creepy' and that's when they breed," said another Saga staffer.

Frank Gillett, Saga food services director attributes the increase in the number of cockroaches to a recent spraying which drove them out of the walls.

One female cockroach can reproduce up to 20,000 times a year under poor conditions; in ideal conditions, this figure can reach 50,000, said an employee of PCO Ltd., an extermination and fumigation service in Hull.

"They can feed off a little blob of grease that can keep the little guys going to perpetuity," added Gillett.

10th Anniversary of Co-Op

By Salim Rashid

Although faculty turnout was poor it did not affect the proceedings of the tenth anniversary celebration of Scarborough's Co-Operative Programme in Administration last Thursday.

The event, which is held annually, enables students to acquaint themselves on an informal level with past, current and prospective employers.

It also provides students with a chance to meet with alumni of the programme some of whom have become prospective employers.

Guests at the celebration included Dr. G. Connell, President of U of T and Professor R. Williams, Principal of Scarborough Campus. Williams presented the awards for highest G.P.A. and outstanding work term reports.

Students receiving an award for the highest G.P.A. in their respective years were Neil Selfs, Jasmine Sweatman, Ken DeBaeremaeker and Brad Christakos.

Outstanding Work Term Report awards were given to Brad Christakos and Mike Mukhtarian. Christakos also won the award for highest overall G.P.A.

Employers including IBM, the Royal Bank and the Economic Development Department of the City of Scarborough were among those present for the celebration.

The Co-Op programme seems to have proven itself. One hundred per cent of last years graduates have gained employment quickly.

Beverly Abramson, Co-ordinator of the Co-Op Programme at Scarborough, feels that the program has had success both in getting jobs for students at graduation and in giving them the necessary background to succeed in the career.

The programme, while successful, is relatively unknown on campus. More students need to be made aware of other viable career alternatives available through Co-Op studies.

SCSC sells packages at bargain prices

By Leona Wilson

Scrooge must be proud of Scarborough Campus students and staff.

Madness swept the Meeting Place last Wednesday as the bargin hunters came out in droves to take advantage of the Scarborough Campus Student's Council (SCSC) Christmas spirit.

SCSC was attempting to reduce the losses which resulted from their inability to sell all the orientation packages they ordered this year by selling the items in the packages separately at cheaper prices.

The agressive pursuit of customers by SCSC's year and SAC representatives resulted in sales totalling $1350.00 and some very hoarse voices.

Orientation t-shirts, towels, mugs, rulers, and pens, were sold at reasonable prices. Adrian Georgescu a U of T staff member stated, "The prices were unbelievable. If I had known they were going to be sold the next day up in SCSC, I would have bought more."

Although the prices were fair, the pricing scheme was problematic. Articles were being sold for different prices to different people. The items were also sold for cheaper prices as the day went on.

Helen Christodoulou explained; "The whole purpose of the sale was to sell out, so we tried a package deal approach. It worked and we continued. There weren't many students who bought the merchandise at the fixed prices and if they did they still got a good deal."

One complaint was lodged to SCSC about the method in which the items were sold but an agreement was reached between the party and SCSC.

The success of this year's SCSC Christmas Clearance Sale, may however affect next year's sale of orientation packages. As one buyer Marie Jones remarked, "Forget orientation packages! From now on I'm waiting until the stuff goes on sale."

Despite the loss, this year's Student Council was one of the few councils to sell all the orientation packages. Services Commissioner Phillip Shaw commented "that this sale just shows what council can do if they pull together."

EDITORIAL

SCSC Report Card

The criteria on which the following grades were accessed include: attendance, speaking ability, initiative, input, communication and overall effectiveness. Members of SCSC and SCSC employees were interviewed and their marks and comments averaged in with the marks of those of The Underground Editorial staff members. The marking scheme is as follows: A - excellent, B - good, C - average, D - poor and F - failure.

Tony McWatt Former President	Tony could have been our Scarborough's best SCSC President. He worked hard and had good ideas. He just made too many mistakes, tried to do too much himself and lost SCSC support. Oh well..	B-
Young Kim V.P. - Adminis.	It's difficult to say if Kim has done a good job because of the V.P.'s vague job requirements. He has, however, been overshadowed by Tony's larger than life personality.	C
Rosanne Blake V.P. - Finance	Although Rosanne has a lot of input in Council meetings, she hasn't always been on top of things and has let Council overspend. Her work commitments haven't left her much time for SCSC.	C-
Philip Shaw Services Commis.	Philip tries hard to please. Most of services thus far this year have been good. The superpub and the cracking down of free tickets were great ideas. There have also been failures, but they weren't all his fault.	B-
Deborah Spencer Communications	Debbie has been a disappointment this year. The Darkroom was extremely late in opening this year, a typesetting manager could not be found, and publicity has been poor for some events.	D-
Angela Sohota Cultural Com.	We haven't really seen anything that Angela has done so far this year. She has also been very quiet in meetings. She is, however, new to the job. We expect more from Angela next term.	D
Surrinder Toor Academics Com.	Toor has received some good commendations from the Presidents of the clubs he is in charge of. He has also produced a good Club Handbook. Dean, however, did not speak out often enough.	C-
Ramses Bissada Part Time Com.	Ramses has good intentions but doesn't speak out often enough. He battled for a better fee structure for part time students in the building of the Student Centre (if it is ever a reality).	C
Jon Rose SCSC Speaker	Rose is perhaps one of the best SCSC speakers in many years. A few SCSC members have complained that Rose makes his opinions too well known in meetings. Nonetheless, a good speaker.	B-
Year Representatives	The saving grace of Student Council this year. They have worked hard and represented their constituents well. Stars to Helen Christodoulou and Arthur Trotman. Boos to Kevin Sack for missing so many meetings.	A-
SAC Representatives	They have been absent too often and haven't had enough input when there. Hopefully they will do a better job in the coming term.	D

The overall mark for this year's SCSC is a C plus. Although they spent far too much time on the honourarium issue, a few of their concerts and events were partial or complete failures, and the SCSC Orientation lost $10,000, a lot of good things were also accomplished by SCSC this year.

The book, bake and orientation package sales were all good ideas as was the implementation of the Superpub. The attempt to build a new student centre is an ambitious project. Tent City, although a failure in many respects, gets the SCSC an A for effort.

Overall, SCSC should be fairly, but not overly, proud of themselves.

Well, Dean Toor got very lucky this week. He almost ended up with an F on the SCSC report card. The sneak tried to change his lowly C minus with the Year Rep.s respectable A minus. He almost succeeded, we didn't notice till the last minute. We were tempted to give him an F, but clear thinking prevailed. DON'T TAMPER WITH THE PRESS, DEAN!

See the rest of you guys in January, Merry Christmas.

CHRISTMAS WISHES

To Sharon Zephyr,
I'll stick around res until you leave. Try to book a train for later than 6 this time. Have a very Merry Christmas! Good Luck on the puzzle.
E&M's big brother

To the Gang:
May all you guys & gals have an amazing Christmas & New Year's. We better get all together during the holiday's & party hard. Pete thank's for the B-52's (awesome!). Nick where do you put all that food! Stop making me laugh, my cheeks hurt!
Jenny, Stop studying so much, you lush! Spaz, get out of that groove (Madonna). Thanks everyone for a great Birthday at the Copa!
Love, Mary-cakes xoxo
P.S. Catch you in the Caf in '86

Dick Cheung P.I;
Many thanks are in order Thanks for all the lifts home (even if your radio station-Roxanne!), thanks for the help collecting, thanks for all the laughs but most of all thanks for caring when times get rough (I love "Magnum Puffcake"). Merry Christmas with much love,
Winking Jeans

Colonel Klink;
Your sharp wit keeps lunch hours fun (aaaahhh!), your serious side keeps things interesting but your friendship makes everything worthwhile. I believe part of friendship is sharing-we've done quite a bit of that lately. I just want to thank you for those long conversations, and for the advice on matters of the heart. Thanks for tea & the musical lifts home. Merry Christmas!
Love, "Wifey"
P.S. 14K, ½ carat would be nice! (just kidding)

Gerrie
I'm really glad we've become good friends. Hope your Christmas is fabulous and if the New Year is anything like this past summer and autumn, it should be fantastic.
Your Partner in Crime

Gregoire,
You deserve recognition in the Scarborough College Ball Hockey Hall of Fame. It's all the way in '86! Merry Christmas,
The Cheerleaders

Prof. M.E.;
If there is one valuable thing I've learned in lab this year it's that you can only be surprised from behind when you're in the mood! (That will haunt you forever!!). Thanks for being patient with me.
Merry Christmas,
The New Demo

Squash Instructor no. 13
To my patient (almost always-except for once-and now I've been warned) teacher. "So you want to play like that eh?" (cheap cheap). Squash was such a friendly game, but alas that silly thought has been permanently erased. POWER SQUASH IT IS! RBC Squash ball beware. Merry Xmas and Happy New year.
With deepest admiration,
Your Cement Foot Protege,
Alias Puppy

Washboard Wang;
Merry Christmas to my long lost identical twin brother. I miss you!
Your long lost identical twin sister.

'Twas the night before
Christmas,
And all through the college,
No one was studying,
Increasing their knowledge.

Annette was all snuggled,
Deep in her bed,
As visions of rings,
Danced in her head.

Dick Cheung P.I.,
Worked all through the night,
To see that the kiddies
Got their presents all right.

Dave Wang as usual,
Was in the meeting place,
Looking for girls,
In leather and lace.

Monna was found on hydrant alley,
Awaiting the boys to come from the Valley,
Baking them cookies with a poison or three
A grin on her face and a giggle of glee.

Tony had finally put the math book away,
And waited in anticipation for Christmas day,
For this day he waited with long sweet bliss
To look in his stocking for a ruler that was his.

Mark and Danny had left the lab,
The lamprey all looked so very sad,
But not to the cafe did Mark and Dan go,
But in search of a man, going ho ho ho.

Gerrie meanwhile was sleeping all humbly,
Hoping that Santa would bring the real Gumby,
But Santa for Gerrie, but one thing carried,
The god of Briar Hill,
The one they call Thierry.

And as for the Pina,
Although she's not here,
Heaven forbid that she gets no cheer,
I write for her now, from the depth of my soul,
To see just once more, the neat Pina roll!

And that leaves jest Greg,
For this Christmas poem
Waiting and hoping to take Blondie home,
For Greg, we must all hope and pray,
That Blondie falls into his lap on Christmas Day,
For if she does not we'll all go insane,
Watching and waiting this young lover's game,

Merry Christmas to all, may you have lots of cheer
After reading my poem will I be alive next year?
Merry X-mas, Col. Klinck

HAPPY HOLIDAYS

Darling Maggie (D-8)
My heart aches for you. I can't stop thinking of you every waking hour of the day. Let me be a part of your Christmas cheer.
Your Lover

To Rika
You are my Christmas dream come true. I dream every day of frolicking in the snow with you. Don't keep me in suspence, let me know your intentions.
Sighing

To the sexy sensuous girls in F-5
Merry Christmas & Happy New Year.
from the Mailman

Wicked Wanda
A little note to say - did you put that note in my locker? ... What I really want to say is ... Merry X-mas, Happy New Year, and of course ... Happy Birthday!!! That's right, her birthday is on the 31st of Dec. She starts the year with a bang!
a constant friend

To Hanif:
Some one had to send you a X'mas wish. God knows the girls won't. Merry X-mas & Happy New Year
Calvin

To the Gals in E-4
Merry Christmas & Happy New Year.
from the Photocopy Man

To the staff of CSCR & The Underground
Have a Happy Christmas & a fun New Year - if you get sick of university, you can always go to College.
Calvin 8T5

To Helen,
Sometimes you get on my nerves. Sometimes you're just an angel. But - always remember that no matter what you are (and what I may say), I love you.
Your Bestest Friend, C.S.

To The Underground staff
I hope Santa brings Alvin some body weight that he is so quickly losing - no man should be that happy.

To Alvin (the invisible asst. publicist)
You must come up with another Dietary Programme - the present one is killing you - maybe we can arrange a trade?
Merry X'mas
your Large Boss

To Elaine, Louis, Kevin, Bill, Karen, Erika, Ted, and Titch
Happy Holidays and the best in the New Year. Thanks for all your effort and initiative. Here's to an even better New Year.
Tomas

To the First Yuppy,
I have already submitted my residence application and hope that I am the truly lucky one. Hope that Santa brings you your wish and we get together.
Your Blond lady

To Young, Tony, John & Lori
Merry Christmas and best wishes for a Happy New Year.
Tomas

Hanif
Merry X-mas to the editor who had the courage of his convictions and someday may be convicted for his courage - the Rag never knows what they're talking about anyway!
an Underground faction

To the Duplicating Manager;
I often watch you from afar. I've spent alot of money photocopying in the hope of speaking to you. But each time I try to approach you, your beauty and your sophistication makes me break out in sweat.
Merry Christmas
From a guy who is "infatuated" by YOU!!!

To Janet;
Thanks for being a bitch, I needed the company.
Love Bitch Jr.

To My Hubby To Be:
Sleepy Bear is after all going to spend Christmas this year with Grumpy Bear.
"Merry Christmas, Love!!!"

To Tracy,
So what have you been up to, stranger. Too busy for your old Underground friends. Drop in anytime, you're always welcome.
Never should have let you leave.

To the Duplicating Staff;
Thanks a lot for doing such a great job and putting up with all of the intelligent questions you are asked by the customers. Merry Christmas.
Signed, The Boss.

To Helen;
I think I only come to council meetings to see you in action. Have a Merry Christmas and see you at the next council meeting.
Love Bitch Jr.

To Connie, Anne, and Shelley;
Hope you have a "PARTY HEARTY HOLIDAY" and have a Merry "X-rated "mas.(Nudge,Nudge, Wink, Wink) Oh ya, here's an early Happy New Years greeting too!!
Missing in body, but not in spirit;
Love, Caroline

To the Blond in B-1;
I know you're going out with someone right now (...a wimp) so for now I'll just wish you a Merry Xmas...and keep waiting!!!
Love, AResidence MAN XO

To Kay & Karen,
I would just like to take this opportunity to thank you both for all your help and most of all your friendship!!
Merry Christmas,
Angela

Dear Karen;
I come to the office everyday just to see your pretty face. I love you Karen and I always have...eventhough I only met you a few weeks ago in residence. It was love at first sight. It's fate Karen...
Rob.

Dear Karen & Kay;
Thanking you for helping me so much this year for your help and would have been committed a long time ago. Hope you have a Merry Christmas.
Signed, You know who

To the Great Gals in The Underground
You are an inspiration to the rest of the mediocre staff. Besides, who else could make the place look so good?
The Guys in Rez

To Elizabeth Woo;
No dearie, I haven't died and I haven't forgotten you. I just want to wish you a very MERRY Xmas and a fantabulous New Year!!!
Thinking about you, and yes I will call you,
Caroline.

To everyone I know and love;
I'm just such a popular broad, that it would take me years to write a personal message to all you courageous and inferior people who associate with me. You should all be thankful you have passed my standard for friendship, I mean think of all the laughs, you would have missed out on.
All conceit aside, I hope you all know how important your friendships are to me. There is no need to mention names because a friendship that exists, exists in the heart. I love you all and thank you. Merry Christmas and have a happy New Year.
Helen

Dave,
I'm really sorry about the 7th, I wish I could change my plans. However, any other time suits me just fine. May all your Christmas wishes be fulfilled - Merry Christmas!

We think you're Gorgeous. Each time we see you we drool, we know you like one of us ... we hope you like the X'mas gift we got you. Merry X'mas. All our love.
The Girls you monopolized at the Student Centre Opening!!

Jon Rose
Ever since that picture of you in The Underground I've added "sex change" on my Christmas list ... since yours was a success, mine will be one, too.
Rather be different

Helen,
You are an adorable creature. I admire you from afar, I admire you from anear. I admire you especially when you smile from ear to ear. You sexy chick!!
You're a sweetie and a half and we'll love you always.

To members of SCSC,
Congratulations for pulling through a very tough fall term. You've been impressive. Keep your chin up- There's a new year around the corner. Have a fabulous (and relaxing!) holiday.
Brigid

To That Special You,
To that sexy walk, those piercing eyes, that somatic moisture between my thighs. You're the cause of so many erotic dreams. You lucious hunk of scrumptious flesh. You're nectar on two legs. You're simply marvelous. From your biggest fan,
Myself

To Permatta,
The next time the family goes out to eat, we're going to have to go to a classier place. My treat.
Eldest Son

To Hanif,
All is forgiven, we were completely wrong in what we said.
Marg

To Dad,
Biff is dead, too much abuse. Stop getting me into so much trouble. More rumour to come.
Your Eldest Son

MERRY CHRISTMAS

To Thanhgoc,
With best wishes for a Happy Birthday! Be confident and you'll see the rainbow by time! OKAY?
Chi Tram, My, Khanh

To Hanif,
Let's hope you have positive things to report next term. I think you will. Have a nice holiday.
A friend

To Lin Teo (my CHMB05Y Tutor),

To the actress who worked for Graham Bell,
Breakfast with Brenda isn't the same(how do I get guilt culture to work for me?). I may start sleeping instead... no, never again! At least at home the cold keeps the mice away. I wouldn't want to catch plague. Drop by more often! Maybe you can catch the mice in my room.
Your brunchmate

To Megan, Suzanne and Laura,
It's been a great fall term. I hope you all have a great holiday. I'll miss the cookies, pies, etc. next term!
Brigid

To Ozan
Happy birthday! Have a wonderful X-mas and a happy New Year.

To our son (the living abortion) and his wife (our family councillor, the child molester)
Have a lovely Christmas, we'll always be here to (mis) guide you.
Mom and Dad

To our adopted son A.T. (the one who wasn't breast fed)
We're glad we adopted you (there's so much of you to love!)
Merry Christmas.
Mom and Dad

To our eldest son H.S. (and his three wives, two mistresses and pet sheep "Biff")
Why don't you all come over for Christmas dinner, we're having lamb chops. Bring Biff.
Mom and Dad

To my wife whom I love dearly (even if she did give birth to several mutants).
Have a Merry Christmas. Hope we see many more Christmases together.
Dad

To the only man I have eyes for:
The snowflakes softly fall
The mercury slowly drops
Pureness of a snow laden ground
Reflects the love of a truly intimate relationship

Intimacy as a walk through and snow covered park.
Sharing ice cream, revealing all feelings
as deep and intricate as the designs on a snowflake
Nothing hidden.

Listen carefully
Songs are heard
The carollers are out
Christmas is here
A time of joy
Quality time
Now and forever

Dear Jim, a.k.a. Master Weirdo
Thanks for listening when I got steamed or otherwise needed an ear. Keep your hands warm (wink,wink, nudge, nudge). Have a great Xmas and a terrific New Year - you've deserved it.
Love, Apprentice Weirdo and fellow mutilator of the English language
P.S. I might be an anomaly, but that does not extend to hanging up on people!

Dear Dawn,
Thanx for notes & other misc. help - I couldn't have made it thru this semester without you. See ya' in the line-up for ECT. Merry Xmas, etc.
Love, Lene

Sam B.,
The last-minute essay man (just thought I'd harass you a bit). I'll get you April 1. Merry Xmas & happy New Year - stay home & stuff yourself, you need it.
Lene A.

Dear Anna - the pinching prez,
Happy Holidays. Treasure your toes, I'll get them someday.
A harrassed Secretary.

Dear Ratsy,
Us? Bitching? Nooo..It's called constructive criticism. Have a mega-cal Christmas (waddle, waddle).

To Angela, Janet, Greg, and Annie in B-1
Merry Christmas to you all and thanks for all your past and future hospitality!
Love, Maureen.

Hiya Kato,
Can you believe it? It's almost Christmas!! Remember priorities. This is the year, buddy. You can do it (ace these Christmas Exams!) It isn't an "insurmountable" task. Honest. Talk to you later.
From, Bruce Lee

To Hanif, Vang, Barb, Helen, and the rest of the UNDERGROUND Staff,
Merry Christmas to a wild and crazy bunch of people!!
From, a wild and crazy person.

To my dearest little Scum,
As we always used to do, here is a Christmas message for you.
I hope you have lots of fun, and get all the things you don't think dumb.
lots and lots of LOVE Spaz.

To all of you who have made both last year and this year a whole lot brighter,
Julia, Karen, Charles, Uno, Dave, Pat, Zoran, Cameran, Bedros, Alun, Daren, Keith, Helen, Prof. Duncan, Lee, and Filip.

Gumby says life is so lonely at the bottom (of the tank that is). Nothing tops Barishnokov, Sinatra, being wounded, gagged and tied and catapulted across the cafeteria. Hope I never become a mere skeleton of myself. If I do, remember to check first before submerging your arms, Rich may have bought those piranhas he's alway wanted). You've definitely added something special to life at "Scarberia College". Merry Christmas and Happy New Year.
The Geroire

Tony,
You have differentiated so much since the first time we met you. The transformation is amazing! It probably comes from integrating with people like Mark and Richard. Statistically, the chances of you regaining you polynomial functions are virtually nil. But thats ok because any further regression is unlikely: you've reached your asymptote. Merry Christmas.
The Critterologists

P.S. I wish you would stop following in my footsteps, you're wearing out the backs of my shoes!

If you don't listen to your babysitter, then who are you going to listen to? Thomas - does your mother know you drive groceries around for a living? Sanjiv - stop trying to impersonate John Travolta and maybe your ankle will get better; Daniel - get a haircut, child! Michael - what on earth are you doing with a piano in your closet, does Pickles know?
With much affection your babysitter
P.S. Have a Merry Christmas, guys!

To my theatre hopping buddy Von. You're one classy guy. Thanks for everything!

Rhonda,
Kinko & his Bro. wish you the best Christmas possible.

To SAVAge:
In the short time that we've known you we've: accosted your mother, learned how to Mambo and earned $2.50 all in unmarked pennies. But most of all we've found out that you're the nicest Canadian, British, Australian, Athenian we've ever known.
Love, the Death Sisters

To my little sis
I sometimes get mad at you, but you know that I really love you. People only get upset at those people they really care about. I care. I would not have made it through this year without you. To The Underground's biggest asset (and I mean biggest),
XOXO, your Big Brother

The guys in I-3 wish all the other rez. students a great Christmas. Come over anytime and try our egg nog.

To the guy who is always running around in shorts in Ian Parkers ECOAO1Y class,
Shivers go up and down my body when I see you. I only wish that you could sooth my most inward desires. It would be my dream cum true to spend an erotic, sensous Christmas together. Think of it, just you and me in front of a fire. The best present I could have would be you.
One open minded sexy starved woman

To Francine in H8,
I really love your body under the gorgeous blue sexy dress

you were wearing during the Halloween party. I know that was way back in time but I can't keep my feelings hidden any longer. When I saw you, I knew I had to have you! I want you. I really need you. (Sure, I would not mind getting to know you in the process). And yes, I will "respect" you the following morning. So please don't keep me waiting any longer. Let me know you care about me. Or if not me, at least, my body.

love,
Steven from the Party

P.S. You can "catch" me around in Rez sometime.

Bo-Bo-Bear

Here's to another Merry X-mas with you. XOXO Boo-Boo-Bear!! P.S.: Meet me at L.C. on the 28th for a little romance & hibernation!!

Hi, cupcake,

Have a wonderful birthday and a Merry X-mas. How does it feel to be a quarter of a century? Live it up!

from, TRAM 1985

To Hanif:

Merry Christmas to someone I admire very much. You make the world a saner, more interesting place ...

Your 'white Anglo-Saxon' friend, Maureen

To the Death Sisters,

Thanks for returning my mother. Now, if you would only clean my locker then I might ask you to buy me dinner - but only if the Macedonian is kept on a leash ... Have a Merry X-mas and a happy New Year ...

The Mambo Man

P.S. Don't spend the $2.50 all at once - the pennies are marked. Might I suggest investing in pool lessons? What about a juggling course? Mambo lessons?

To the gentlement of C-6

Please look after my grandson, he doesn't know what he is doing. Bless your little hearts! Merry, merry Christmas, Greg, Tom, Brent, Wylie-sweetums, Wayne, and Demi. And have a Happy, happy New year.

Yours with adoration,
Grandma

Dear Klean,

Just thought I'd say "hello". I think you are a wonderful person and I really enjoy your company. Here's to friendship.

A Friend

Jackie

Has it been 16 years already?! It seems like yesterday when I accosted you in the playground and begged you to be my friend. I told you I've made some good decisions.

love always, Vangie

To Maureen,

To one of my best friends who I never quite get to see enough of, and who sent me one of the few "nice" Christmas messages, thanks. Drop by more often.

Hanif

To the SCSC

I wish the entire council a very Merry X'mas! (yes, everyone)

XXX

Richie,

Well, it's almost X'mas and that wedding date is long past. Isn't it sad that I only got lettuce thrown at me? And I don't even have a left arm to show for it.

Your ex-fiance

Tom, My dear 'Husband'

Heard you've been having a real ball with someone else ... wait up and see if you can pencil me in... Miss you, dahling. Merry Christmas!

To the swede and Brad,

Merry Christmas ... may your champagne bubble merrily! (say hello to Europe for me!)

love, Kate & Lisa

Dear Hanif,

Not a lot of people realize just how hard you are trying to please everyone ... forget them! I still believe in you ... Have a restful Christmas, sweetie!

Still needs to be fixed and de-clawed ...

To my housemates in H-6,

You're the best bunch of girls anyone could hope to live with. Merry X'mas.

The Cookie Breeder

To David S.

See this!? See this!? We wish you the s--ist X'mas from the bottom of our feet.

From all of us who are sick

To the students on 6th Floor S-Wing: Give a little break to me during the Christmas holidays! And I refuse anymore CPU time or printouts at that time. So there!

Fellow Women of G-6.

Okay you losers, get a grip on life! See how you have influenced my vocab. Your company has been stimulating and refreshing-like a fresh snowball hitting my face (there's a compliment in there, somewhere). Anyways, I hope that your holidays are good to you. Joyeux Noel ladies.

Love, Klean

To: Mom and Dad (my clients)

May you have many more wonderful sons.

Big Sis:

For all we've shared. That's what friends are for! Thanks Merry Christmas.

Love little Sis

Hey, Dave!

What's with the spiffy clothes? After the chicks again you floozy. Learn to rotate cases!

To a prof. Loft

Je veux dire que vous etes une bonne femme! Merci beaucoup pour tous que vous ayez fait. Joyeux Noel!

Michele

To Dave in B-2

Thanks for helping me with those bugs. It was nice of you. Happy holidays.

Fang,

Here's to the biggest (and best) bartender. Remember, you're ugly, but not unattractive.

Brent

One more word about the sailor's pub and you'll visit Davey Jones' locker.

To that special girl in BIOB14,

I bet you've never realized that I've been mentally undressing you during every class. I only think of you in a red and black silk-covered, heart-shaped bed floating in a vat of fruit-flavoured jello sailing towards the horizon under a full moon.

Here's looking at you in more ways than one

To pooky-kins,

Goobiewoogiepookiedoo, I wove you bery much!

Barb L.,

In this season of goodwill and sharing, will you be good and share your wealth of intelligence, humour and fun-loving attitude with me?

I know your name!

Hey mofo,

I couldn't have done it without you. Thanks.

Man nor machine

To Steve, GQ Bartender,

We're sure that you must fend off chicks with a bat, cutie!

Dave,

Let's play cards. I hate when that happens. Whose ace? Your ace everytime. You may be feeble and weak, but you are also pretty. How did you get your job anyways.

Dear Granma,

Have a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Love, The Grandchildren

To the Wily One,

Nice girl but cut another ace and you'll be fed to the raccoons.

To genius who writes on Ch'ing,

Give him up! The man has no taste. Anyone who does not immediately realize your wit, grace, charm and beauty does not deserve you. Keep smiling!

PS: I love your earrings.

To Barb,

I am really going to miss you when you go. Late production nights will never be the same again. Memories, like the corners of my mind, misty water ... you know the rest.

Love, always, Hanif

Harriet?

Harriet who? Like, where does she come from and where does she go?

To the proprietors of the Reggaer Rumbar,

Honorarium Committee

Let it be known that a special committee to decide on an evaluation system to determine honoraria is being organized. The Honorarium Committee will consist of the following personnel:

1) a chairman (filled);
2) one (1) executive council member;
3) two (2) year representatives; and
4) two (2) students from Scarborough Campus at large.

Anyone interested in participating on the committee should drop their brief written application, stating their ideas or qualifications, in the mailbox of Shawn Rabishaw (Chairman of the Honorarium Committee) at the SCSC office. Successful applicants will be announced in CouncilScope. The Committee will begin meeting sometime in the new year.

Holiday Greetings from SCSC

We the members of SCSC would like to take this opportunity to wish the students, faculty and staff, and their families, a very safe and happy holiday season with best hopes for the new year!

We wish you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year!!!!

FM in Concert

By Wayne MacDonald

Last Wednesday, FM played at the Diamond Club. This was a special event as it was the second annual appearance of the group playing together.

FM, which comprises of Cameron Hawkins, Martin Dalller & Nash the Slash, is no stranger to the music business, they first appeared in 1977. They recorded and released their first album Black Noise in 1978.

A second album followed shortly thereafter.

However, the band went through some turmoil, with lead guitarist, violinist, and vocalist Nash the Slash going out on his own. Only recently have the band got back together.

They recently completed their third album, Can . Test.

Judging by their dynamite performance on Wednesday, Scarborough has a lot to look forward to this Friday. This promises to be a great concert.

So if you are one of those who missed the other events, here is one opportunity that you can't afford to miss.

MERRY CHRISTMAS

To All Scarborough Village Residents:

Good Luck on all your exams! We hope that novice Residents have had a smooth first term. If there are any problems, please don't hesitate to give us a shout. But for now, we'd like to wish each resident a very Merry Christmas with all the best for the New Year.

The Dons

To Sandra,

Hang in there Sandra, I need you. 68 Pounds of Sex Goddess is hard to replace. That smile, that wink, it just won't be the same. We'll get together this Christmas, O.K.?

Hanif

To that "Swedish" Inga:

What are friends for, if they cannot use and abuse each other? I hope you have a super Christmas break, one that will refresh you for the next grueling new year. Merry Christmas, kiddo.

Barb

Beaner:

I know I've made a lot of Bad Calls and my judgements are sometimes blurred, but I miss you a lot and i wuv you always. Merry Christmas, you teddy bear!

Sunshine

To F11

May Santa give you big hugs at Christmas! Merry Christmas, everyone! Santa XOXO

To Barb,

With you gone, we won't be the same. No more shoes on the ceiling. All the same, have a great Christmas and a happy new year and don't forget to drop by.

A photographer, not the one that limps

To Vangie,

I will never forget that Tuesday you turned my boring day into a special day. Have a Merry Christmas and a happy new year.

Someone who remembers

To Angela;

The sweetest, the most innocent and kindest phony bitch I know. I hope you have a Merry Christmas and I'll see you at the Grad Ball and you can be the man.

Signed, B1F

To Barbie,

Merry X'mas, have fun studying up at the ski lodge!

Elephant No. 2

To Lisa

Merry Christmas, you spastic alki!

love
Gig

To the CSA President,

To reward you for such a great job you're doing this year, I'm going to make your Christmas holidays extra special. You know, cozying up next to you in front of the fireplace on a chilly night, tobogganing in the snow, ice skating on the frozen lake, skiing, boy, I can't wait!

Love, the Distribution Mngr.

To all my friends,

here, there, wherever - It's been more than an experience, may the insanity never stop.

Alvin

To my family, the staff of The Underground,

It's been a long first term. In that time we've made life-long friendships, had disagreements, and also had a good time.

I'm proud to say we have put out the best Scarborough student newspaper in the history of this college. It couldn't have been done without you.

I wanted to individually mention and thank all of you, but when my list of names grew to over 75, I gave up. You know who you are. Take a bow.

Next term will be better, I hope everyone will be here to join me. Party at my place, date to be announced. Be there.

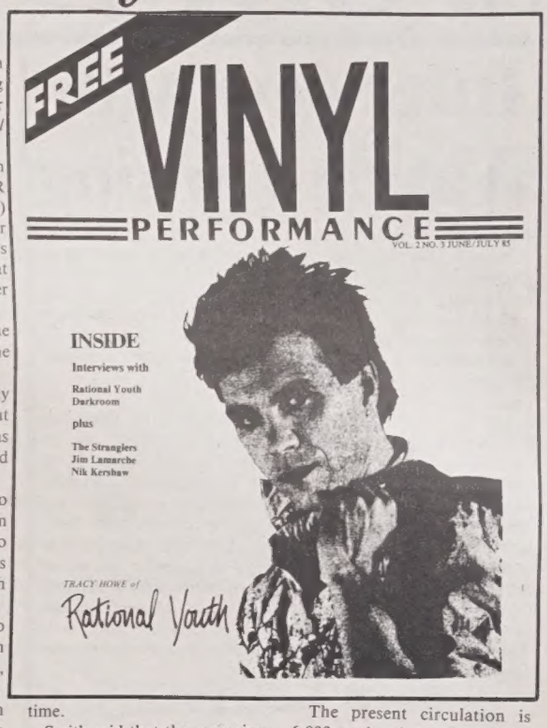
Vinyl Performance

By Barbara Lim



Students from Scarborough College have become young entrepreneurs creating their own magazine, Vinyl Performance.

Bill Smith, former Station Manager of CSCR (Scarborough's Radio Station) and Jim Rogers, a former CSCR disc jocker for four years co-publish the magazine that began as a simple newsletter meant to review albums.

"We're tired of reading the same opinions from the same reviewers" said Smith.

The magazine is primarily focused on album reviews but does have interesting sections as well on Video, Technology and Imports.

"One of our objectives is to generate some new circulation of opinion within the Toronto community, with 14 reviewers who have varying tastes" Smith said.

Vinyl Performance hopes to profile domestic talent through interviews and reviews, especially unestablished talents.

A mere phone call between Smith and Rogers sparked the birth of a new magazine. They were inspired by the Siskel & Ebert-type of radio show.

Despite Smith's job as the Toronto Board of Education and Rogers' job at Brewer's Retail, they manage to put out the issues during their spare time.

Smith said that the magazine "has been run more or less on our own enthusiasm and encouragement from the industry."

Most of the contributors are volunteers except for advertising representatives and typesetters.

The present circulation is 6,000 copies that are available in all record stores on the "downtown strip" plus various stores outside of this area.

The target readership are for the 15-35 year old range, leaning towards the avid record buyer and radio listener.

There will be a meeting of The Scarborough Campus Student Press Board of Directors on Wed. 4th at 10:30 p.m.

Commentary

The Underside

By Winston Andrews

LOVE BIRDS

Well, well, well. Gilbert finally found out about the engagement of SAC V.P. Phil Boland and SCSC Communication Commissioner Deborah Spencer.

Not only was Gilbert two weeks behind in breaking the news to his Newspaper readers, but was also obviously short on a few facts.

First, Gilbert mentions that Spencer is a "hubba, hubba, hubba." It is quite obvious he has never seen Spencer, "blubber, blubber, blubber" would have been more appropriate.

Spencer looks like she's been gaining weight lately, must be all the expensive restaurants Boland has been taking her out to.

Winston would like to also point out that Boland is already "hypnotized", as evidenced by his recent haircut, courtesy of Debbie (Spensive to friends).

It was evidently forced upon Boland at a weak moment in an attempt to make him less appealing in the eyes of female admirers. Good Job, Debbie!

MORE YUPPY LOVE

Speaking of love, First Yuppy SCSC Prez. Young Kim is still searching for his perfect match.

Winston hasn't been able to reach Young for comment on his recent effort, but the offers must be pouring in for a spot in the "pentagon". Young was last seen at the Co-op diner looking for other Yuppy-types.

POOR LITTLE RICH KIDS

Winston has also learned that Tomas "poor little rich kid" Schmidt, another of the "pentagon's" residents, has been power-lunching with SAC Services Commissioner, and the inside choice for next year's SAC presidency, Iggy Pitt.

Pitt has also been spending more time at Scarb. than usual. Winston wonders if Pitt is looking for a suburban running-mate or if he is just hiding from his recent Library Trip bash.

Both Pitt and Schmidt deny any running-mate possibilities.

SPORTS

Interview with Wayde Lansing

By Nigel Alty

Wayde Lansing has been the coach of the Women's Volleyball team for two seasons. Last year he coached them to a championship title. In a rare interview, he talks about his teams and its' potential this year.

Q. How will the losses of several key players such as Janice Gerard; Lisa Depew and captain Sandy Smyth effect the team this year? Will there be much positional reconstruction?

A. The loss of Janice and Lisa's control and consistent high quality of play is irreplaceable. However, Jessica Raedisch has significantly added renewed strength to this year's team.

Q. During pre-season competition, you indicated to me that you were somewhat concerned about this years' rookies and their lack of talent. How have you dealt with this?

A. I was initially concerned about the lack of control and a weak offensive attack. However, I attributed this to pre-season jitters. Both the team and I had agreed that in order to improve the quality of play we would resort to the Fundamental skills. This has obviously helped considerably.

Q. There has been a noticeable improvement in this year's team since the beginning of the season. What do you attribute this to?

A. The players' willingness to practice and work towards a common goal. It's team unity, not individuality that produces a successful club.

Q. Where do you think this year's strengths lie?

A. Sue Murray's quality of play has improved considerably. Because she is an all-round player, others tend to feed off her. Returning vets Christine Wood and Jennifer Britton are always consistent in terms of control and attack. They also tend to promote team unity especially in pressure situations.

Q. Do you recognize any potential weaknesses or problems arising in the future?

A. To things often worry me: Will the women be able to serve consistently in a must win situation and will the bench be able to produce when called upon. I believe the bench is a vital element to the team's morale.

Q. Who are your new recruits and how will they assist the team?

A. Gail Yacula provides a consistent offensive attack. Claire Burube exemplifies hard work and team unity. Phyllis Wong is an exceptional back court player. Ellen Murphy is capable of shutting down the opponent's offensive attack at the net. Kristina Kompe tends to lack assertiveness. However, her skills are radically improving. Loise Jolly is steadily improving and will be a vital asset to the team, when she reaches her peak.

Q. Who do you feel will be your major competition this year?

A. The Phys. Ed A team.

Football friendships

By Mel Catre

Another season has come and gone.

School is finally settling in. Many players find themselves behind in several courses. These last two weeks before Christmas exams (a true "contradiction in terms" if ever there was) have been spent in a mad rush to "catch up".

To the average student, this situation is a difficult one. To the football players, the words "Christmas Exam" are nearly sacrilegious. They are willing, however, to make the sacrifice, for football players are a special breed; part athlete, part scholar, part animal, part gentleman.

The personnel of this year's Men's Interfaculty Football Team were especially talented. Moreover, new friendships were made, and old friendships were strengthened.

The group was a team in every sense of the word; they played together, they studied together, they partied together, they even had hangovers on the same mornings (curiously coincidental isn't it?).

The team compiled a 6 win - 1 loss record, bowing only to Phys-Ed in a heartbreaking contest for the Mulock Cup. Enroute, the season saw many exciting plays, both on offence and defence. Who could forget Lionel Carter's 75 yard touchdown romp against Erindale? Nor "The Connection's" aerial attack which disected opposing defences? Nor Chip O'Sullivan's terrorizing rover blitzes? All in all, everyone on the team had a good, successful season.

Curiously enough, these are not the memories which will first resurface when we look back on those days. Rather, it is the memory of the camaraderie and friendship which will come to mind, for these are the things which held the team together. We will all remember Chuck Doran's words of inspiration before the last few games, "This is the best bunch of guys I have ever played with in any sport!"

To those non-football players who are reading this, I hope that you now have some understanding of what the football team is about, for it is difficult to express in words.

What I have given you thus far is only the tip of the football iceberg. The only way to understand the team fully is to experience it.

Here's to you! Here's to the team! Have a Merry Christmas, and thanks.

"A" Hockey wins

By Joe Sprom

Last Thursday the Scarborough "A" Hockey Team met last year's runner up New College in a grudge match in which Scarborough "eked" out a 2-0 victory.

With the win Scarborough increased its record to 6-0-1.

The first period of the game was characterized by missed opportunities and bad luck on the part of both teams.

The second period was also scoreless until the last five minutes of the game. Defenceman Duane Kozlowski fed Mark Grant but Grant's shot was stopped by the New defender. Gary Soper, however, after a few pokes at the puck, jammed it into the net.

This goal seemed to inspire a listless Scarborough squad. On the ensuing face-off left winger Bill Douris fed a wide open Soper. The New goalie could not hold onto Soper's blast and Soper pounced on the puck and put it over the helpless goalkeeper.

Scarborough's next encounter was a controversial match against St. Mikes which resulted in a final score of 3-3.

The game was scoreless midway through the first period when Scarborough's left winger Len Morishita broke down the left wing and passed to Mark Simpson. Simpson slid a pass to Jim Stoddart, whose low, hard wrist shot beat the St. Mikes goalie.

Later on in the first period St. Mikes drew even when a hard slapshot eluded Scarborough netminder Ted Hands.

Scarborough regained the lead when winger Steve Barrett worked hard in the corner enabling winger Steve Barrett to feed a perfect pass to Soper. Soper beat the St. Mikes goalie with a high shot to the glove side.

Halfway through the second period St. Mikes tied the game. As the period was ending Scarborough once again regained the lead when defenceman John Mogavero spotted Soper. Soper once again came through and Scarborough led 3-2.

With ten seconds remaining St. Mikes tied the game at 3-3. There was some controversy over the goal as St. Mikes was accused of having six skaters and one goalie on the ice.

Only three Scarborough defencemen were used during the entire game. They were Chris O'Brien, Duane Kozlowske and John Mogavero. All three put in a fine effort.

The "A" Hockey Teams' next game is this Thursday, 9 p.m. at the Varsity Arena against Vic College.

Athlete of The Week

Gary Soper has traditionally been a major goal scorer for the Men's A Hockey Club and last week was certainly no exception. Gary's determination and aggressive style of play was a prominent factor to the success of this years team.

During last weeks confrontation with New College Gary led his team to a 2-0 victory, Gary was responsible for both goals.

In the following game against St. Mikes Gary was instrumental in putting Scarborough ahead 3-2 late in the third period. Unfortunately after a controversial goal, St. Mikes tied the game 3-3.

Gary is also involved in Intramural Floor Hockey, currently playing for Smoyvl, when he can find the time. He also teaches at the Frank Miller Power skating school, which explains his often brilliant performance on the ice.

Gary is a third year Commerce student and hopes to pursue a career in Accounting or in a related field.

The sports department and Beaver Foods acknowledge Gary's fine athletic ability and are honoured to present him as Athlete of the Week.

Agents regain title

By Scott McBride and Karl Brand

After two weeks of close, intense playoff games, the 1985 Co-ed Touch Football League's three division champions have been crowned.

Last year's A division finalists, the Free Agents, regained their stranglehold on the school championship trophy. The Agents have now won the League three of the last four years.

In the semifinal game, the Agents defeated last year's school champs, Total Arrogance in one of the best games in recent memory.

Arrogance went into the game as the only undefeated team in the school this year. They were led by the CFL division's leading female scorer, Sandy Shantz, and the division's top defenders, Scott McBride and Jim Richardson.

The Agents, who were led all season by the division's top male scorer, Chris Simpson, won the game on the last play. With overtime looming, the Agent's Chuck Doran, pulled down the winning touchdown reception in the back of the Arrogance endzone.

In the other CFL division semifinal, the Mighty Mites, led by Rich McCullum's outstanding play, handily shutout Pog Mo Thoin, 26-0.

The CFL division final proved to be another close, exciting game, as the Free Agents held off a title-hungry Mighty Mites, to win the crown, 19-13.

The Agents jumped to an early 19-0 lead by halftime. However, the Mites, on a scoring play by Michelle Chin Fook moved to within six points with only minutes remaining. The Agents, though, dug in defensively and held off a last gasp hail mary and the game was theirs.

In the League's NFL division, the "Showdown of the Residents" turned out to be just that, a showdown.

The division championship game pitted the Village People vs. the STD's. Both teams were made up of students who live in residence.

The Village People were favoured because they had finished the regular season with a 5 win, two loss record, while the STD's finished in fifth place at 3-3-1. In division quarterfinals, the STD's defeated the Smurfs, who were led by the division's top defender Fre Chin Sang, by a score of 26-12.

The other quarterfinal saw the MMW's defeat the Will Nots 37-12. The Will Nots had been led by the division's top underdog STD's defeated the the first place Mitches Bitches, who were led by the division's top male scorer Ian Cunningham, 13-0.

While in the other semifinal, top male scorer, Shawn Sooley. Each had 12 points in the semifinal game.

The Dozen also had the division's top defenders, Shawn Sooley and Grant Cheyne. This set up the championship final. The Dirty Dozen scored on their first drive of the day to take a 12-0 lead. However, the 'Busters' defence held off the Dozen for the rest of the game, while their offence put 12 points on the board to send the game to overtime. In overtime, Lynn Owen's touchdown reception halfway through the overtime period gave the Dirty Dozen a hard-fought victory.

Congratulations to all champions as well as all the players who came out this year to compete and have fun. Also, thanks go out to referees Penn Yuyi Tung, Rob Langlois, and Bill Choi, as well as Debbie Magerman.

The Village People cruised to a 49-0 whitewash over the MMW's. The division championship game was a very close affair. The STD's, on the strength of two male touchdowns, held off many scoring attempts by the pressing Village People, to take the division championship 12-6.

The WFL Championship game saw the division's top two teams square off. The 6-1 Rockbusters and the 6-1 Dirty Dozen made their way through the playoff schedule in order to meet up again in the finale.

The Rockbusters defeated Not Trying 32-7 in their semi-final game. The 'Busters were led by Helga Nitschmann's first half score and Kathleen Larson's second half TD.

In the other division semifinal, the Dirty Dozen shutout the Spread Eagles 26-0. The Dozen were led by the division's top female scorer, Sue McCleod, and the division's

Mens' Volleyball Team Undefeated

By Sean Smith

"They were better than any teams we faced all of this year," said men's volleyball coach, Al Trim, after the Scarborough team's convincing victory over a strong team from New College last week.

The win moved the team to a 6-0 regular season record. This gives them a solid hold on first place. The New College squad, like Scarborough, was undefeated going into the match.

Coach Trim didn't attribute the victory to the performance of any single player but to a total team effort.

Tim Baron and rookie Rob Cattle shared the setting duties. Many of Trim's substitutions were based on the benefit of having these two exceptionally talented setters. The setters allowed Scarborough to keep three big men in the front row throughout the contest.

Scarborough has also defeated Vic College and University College this season and will undoubtedly meet some stronger opponents following the Christmas break.

Coach Trim is pleased with his team as evident during last week's game, he actually showed some degree of emotion.

New College was stunned by some of the offensive plays made by Scarborough. In particular, the shots set up the middle to both Doug Martin and Terry Apoustolo.

Martin was bouncing them off 'new' players while Apoustolo was landing them solidly in the opposition's front court.

This year's team looks like a winner so come out and give them your support in the new year.

Volleyball finals marked by upsets

By Jeff Weiner and Eric Frendo

Co-ed Volleyball was marked by a series of upsets in semi-final play this week. First place teams fell in droves.

In the Green Division, the league-leading STD's fell to an improved Pink Panther squad. The Panthers this week will take on AACSA1, who defeated Jafat 2-1 in a very close match.

In Blue Division play, C.S.A. downed the first place Village People to advance to the finals. They will meet Synaptic Transmission who beat the "B" team in their semi-final match.

The upsets continued in the Yellow Division as Total Arrogance upset the number one Sure Things. Total Arrogance will meet the Widgets in the final as they defeated Action Potential I.

Red Division was rocked by controversy as a Charger player's eligibility was questioned. As a result of this, the Chargers defaulted to the Lazers II. The SBG's will meet the Lazers II in the championship as they knocked off the Scags.

If you are interested in playing volleyball next term, the deadline for entry is this Wednesday. Get your team lists to the Phys. Ed. office as soon as possible.

Douris with hat trick

By Steve Sormaz

In an exciting game between last year's Intermediate Division finalists, the Scarborough "C" Trappers ice hockey team defeated the Woodsworth College Undergraduates by a score of 4-0.

Drew Douris provided a stellar performance in Sunday's game as he tallied his first hit trick of the year. Douris' combination of toughness and finesse enabled him to gain perfect position in the slot.

The fourth goal was added by veteran defenceman Art Mannarn who blasted a shot from the deep slot position past the bewildered Woodsworth goalie.

Although there were a few tense moments in the Scarborough zone, goalie Mark Kuhlberg's fine effort ensured a Trapper shut-out, but not without the help of defencemen Don Boyer and Steve Lennox, who managed to contain the often dangerous Woodsworth offence.

Forwards Mark Sutton and Frank Hannan displayed great playmaking abilities in the Woodsworth end, and each gained two assists.

The line of Glen Bradley, Sandy Middletonand Glenn Cooper, fresh from an eight goal performance in last week's game, shell shocked the Woodsworth goalie, but could not manage to put one between the pipes.

Douris's hat-trick was his fifth since joining the Trappers last season, but he explained that "scoring, as a personal thing, is definitely secondary to the needs of the team. If I've already got two goals, I won't purposely hog the puck to get a hat-trick, I'll pass the puck to someone who is in a better position than me."

Attendance is noticeably down from last year and your support would be appreciated greatly. Game times are posted outside the athletic office above the R-wing cafeteria.

The Underground is looking for sports writers, please contact Nigel Alty or Sean Smith in rm. H213C if you are interested.

Interview with Wade Lansing

Erindale also has a score to settle.

Q. Do you feel this year's team is as competent as last year's team?

A. As far as being competitive ; yes, versatility, no. The women's desire to win tends to be more evident as the season progresses. The caliber of competitiveness and players' quality in the league seems to be much less.

Q. What do you feel are your contributions to the team?

A. I believe a coach's responsibility is to direct a team towards a common goal. I try to instill in the women that virtually any obstacle can be overcome. I also have the outside advantage in terms of noticing the other team's weaknesses. It is also a coach's duty to eliminate mental frustration when a player may lack confidence.

Having indicated that cutting players this late in the season was highly probable. When asked why, he replied, "No comment." He also believes certain individuals are not contributing to the team's ethic. When asked who the players were he replied "No comment."

HISTORY

A B.A. For Mae Brown

The following article was reprinted from The Decade Book - 10 Years of Scarborough College.

On June 1st, 1972 in Convocation Hall Mae Brown will stand beside the Chancellor instead of kneeling before her and Dr. Pauline McGibbon will confer the degree of Bachelor of Arts through manual touch on Mae's left hand.

Mae is totally deaf and blind and this will be the only way to communicate to her that she has achieved her goal. Mae Brown will be the first deaf-blind person to graduate from university in Canada.

The journey from Clarkwood residence for the blind to Convocation Hall took twelve years. Seven of them were spent completing Mae's high school education and five at Scarborough College.

During these years Mae attended summer school too, making a total of almost twelve months work every year for twelve years. No wonder her psychology professor, Dr. Bert Forrin, refers to Mae as "the gutsiest girl I know".

Mae wasy born near Thunder by, Ontario, the daughter of a bushworker and his wife. She has two sisters and a brother but is the only one in the family to have had academic leanings.

Asked about her favourite subject she readily replied, "Literature, Literature and History have always been my two favourite subjects."

Now Mae wanted the further challenge of gaining a university degree. W.E. Milton, the Director of National Vocational Guidance and Training at the CNIB consulted with the late Edward M. Davidson who was then Director of Admissions for the University of Toronto.

Dr. McGibbon spells a B.A.

It was decided that the college best suited to her physical needs was Scarborough then the newest university campus.

Scarborough College represents a new concept in university design in that it is a single entity - a building with the fewest possible hazards for a student of Mae Brown's capacities.

Once again arose the question of finding a teacher for Mae to pilot her through the university years. Whoever shouldered the responsibility would have to be with Mae at every lecture and seminar, assume a heavy work-load of home studies and study preparation as well as driving twenty miles twice a day throughout the entire year because Mae had to take summer courses to gain enough credits to graduate in five years.

When Mrs. Joan MacTavish was approached by the CNIB she was very dubious about taking on the job. She knew that working with Mae would be a matter of almost total involvement and a tremendous responsibility. Then Mae's intense desire to further her education overcame Mrs. MacTavish's doubts and she agreed.

Before embarking on any academic project she drove to Scarborough College to get acquainted with the physical aspects of the place and to lay the groundwork for as trouble-free an occupation as possible.

She picked out the choicest parking space - right by the front door - and with the consent of the superintendent has been able to keep it for the duration: as with the locker she and Mae share which is the first on the immediate right as you step out of the elevator.

"Three things are absolutely essential in a situation like this", Mrs. MacTavish explained. "Hand language, a tape-recorder and a Brailler."

When lectures and seminars are over for the day Mrs. MacTavish's homework begins. From the tape recordings she makes notes of the lectures and these are to be sent out to be Brailled. Teacher and pupil study these notes together.

Later Joan will condense them into a skeleton version, that version into an index and the index into brief notes on individual slips of paper. This is the concentrated essence Mae will use when studying for her examination.

Mae will be able to move out of Clarkwood residence into an appartment with Marjorie Drew-a friend of many years standing. Marjorie is also blind but has her hearing. She looks after the household and supplies the ears when Mae needs them as in carrying on a telephone conversation. She is essential to Mae at home as Mrs. MacTavish is at college and moreover is able to give Mae the companionship that was lacking in the residence.

When Mae Brown was admitted to Scarborough College choice of subjects was on an either/or system which no longer exists.

At that time science and mathematics were included in her curriculum but, for obvious reasons she could not tackle either one so she was allowed to gain extra credits in other subjects. Her choice reveals the far-ranging interests of her highly intelligent and enquiring mind - Sociology, Anthropology, Political Science, and of course, English and History.

In September Mae's experience and abilities will be put to use in helping other deaf-blind people. The CNIB is opening a new department to care for and develop the deaf-blind of whom there are nearly 400 in Canada. Mae Brown, B.A., will be Ontario Supervisor in charge of the plan.

Mae Brown died eighteen months after graduation. Her career was a great boost to all who availed themselves of her work.

Canadian content shopping list

Christmas is descending upon us at an alarming rate and I'm sure you are already trying to duck the commercials.

But, financial considerations aside, part of the joy of Christmas is in spreading good cheer and bestowing presents upon your loved ones. What better place to start your search for the perfect gift than in the record bins.

This week, we'll play show and tell with a cross section of Canadian talent that's sure to cover everyone on your list, from Uncle Bert the pig farmer in Tillsonberg to cousin Kevin, who hasn't been the same since watching "The Song Remains the Same" for 37 hours straight.

MICHAEL JONES/ SEASCAPES/PIANOSCAPES INC. - Ambience is not a new concept. From the modulating sighs of Brian Eno's "Music For Airports" to Muzak's motivational stratagems, the idea displays many facets.

Jones uses his flowing piano style as the medium to weave pretty aural tapestries. The music makes no demands upon the listener but is suitable for dressing up any mellow activity.

Seascape's extended pieces are the perfect complement for fine dining, a mid-afternoon power-slouch or just a quiet evening with that special someone.

MURRAY MCLAUGHLIN/ MIDNIGHT BREAK/TRUE NORTH - Once upon a time, it was Murray the big city kid and Bruce the pastoral folkie, but after fifteen years on the road, the roles have shifted to a point where Cockburn is the jazzy, hip activist and McLaughlin's speciality is urban country music.

In Midnight Break he tackles his subjects - milltowns, hookers, golden fields of summer wheat - with a rural twang but still powers them with a tough rockin' edge.

The ballads, he keeps sad and sweet with no hint of saccharine, and it all adds up to being his best release yet.

FRED PENNER/A HOUSE FOR ME/TROUBADOUR RECORDS - Kids is people too, and they have a great appreciation for music because it's something they can share with an adult world.

My three-year old critic-in-residence has a fondness for Fred Penner, but whether that is because of his traditional folk and classic children's songs or because of his original tunes, she won't elaborate.

Suffice it to say, his music displays a gentle warmth and affinity for the small fry. It captures their hearts as well as their attention.

DEMO CATS/THEME FROM AN OFFICER AND A GENTLEMAN/ABRAHAM DIST. CO. - This Juno nominated selection proves that "music for lovers" is not just another hackneyed phrase.

His funky sax and mellow vocals transforms this mixed bag of recent MOR standards and original songs into a romantic set of jazzy R & B.

Don't be fooled by the budget cover, no expense was spared on production and session work and the results are as tasty as they are seductive.

STRANGE ADVANCE/2WO/ CAPITOL—Strange Advance is Vancouver's answer to Ultravox, comparable because both bands share an ability to cloak their music with a sense of drama that is almost cinematic in scope.

Although the lp contains a couple of pop tunes that are basically fluff, the remainder are as intense and moody as the album's big single "We Run."

2WO is an imaginative follow up to their first effort Worlds Away and is already receiving attention on international charts.

TERRY SUMSION/MIDNIGHT INVITATION/SAVANNAH RECORDS - Commercial country is alive and well in Canada, and Sumsion is using his big, booming voice to spread the word.

His brand of music is a slick, polished sound that fulfils all of the cardinal rules of country - someone must be either crying, dying or going somewhere.

The title cut with its accompanying video is hot on the C & W charts and fortifies Sumsion's position as one of our foremost country acts.

HELIX/LONG WAY TO HEAVEN/CAPITOL RECORDS - metal munchies for your favorite headbanger. Heavy metal is notorious as the bastard spawn of rock and roll, but this lp integrates power chords with crisp harmonies and strong melodic lines in an effort that leaves most contemporary thud-rock miles behind.

The tunes are driven with a rare urgency, textured with a little synth and the message is clear - party hearty.

THE SATTALITES/AXE RECORDS - These guys are probably Canada's best reggae act, and while the disc doesn't quite capture the zany fun of the live show, it serves as a good introduction to the band.

Frontmen Jo Jo Bennett and ex-folkie Fergus Hambleton recruited Sly and Robbie for their debut album and cover original material as well as two different mixes of the Beatle's "She Loves You."

Great stuff, buy the record and see the show.

THE ARROWS/THE LINES ARE OPEN/ A & M - Their second lp sees the Arrows starting to realize the potential that garnered their debut a "Most Promising New Group" nomination at the Juno's.

The music is pop - an up-beat hybrid of U.S. rock rhythms and chiming British guitar stylings on a solid base of Toronto R & B.

Their hit single "Talk-Talk" showcases the album, highlighting the intelligent lyrics and that touch of funk that is sure to carry the Arrows to world-class status.

ROUGH TRADE/BIRDS OF A FEATHER/CBS - This is a compilation of all the best little nasties Carol Pope and co. have dished out over the past decade.

But just to show us that she has a soft spot in her black leather heart, Ms. Pope has also tossed in a couple of new tunes and a re-recording of the classic "Birds of a Feather."

The new version lacks the vampy badness of the original but I'll give it an eight 'cuz it's got a good beat.

Christmas being a time for festive song, why not usher in the festive season to the dulcet tones of Doug Bennet and his clutch of slugs?

Their interpretation of Irving Berlin's "White Christmas" may cause Auntie to trash her hearing aid but what the heck? Tis the season ... right?

So Merry Christmas to all and sundry, and don't forget, as Ian Anderson sings "The Christmas spirit is not what you drink."

Alice at Scar.

By Carolyn Houghton

Did you read Alice In Wonderland and Through The Looking Glass when you were a child? If you didn't, or if you did and loved it, you should see Alice's Adventures here at Scarborough Campus next Thursday evening, Saturday afternoon or Saturday evening.

Alice's Adventures is an adaption of Lewis Carroll's two classic stories. This production is directed by faculty member Leigha Lee Browne. The cast is made up of students, alumni and faculty, including Principal G.R. Williams. Professor John Mayo will provide musical accompaniment.

Like last year's extravaganza, the Christmas event will take place in the Meeting Place; this is a monumental undertaking.

According to Judy Begley, stage manager for the show, working in the Meeting Place is "totally insane." It's very difficult to conduct rehearsals with people walking through all the time.

On the plus side, the space allows for some varied and interesting staging - the stairs and the balconies will be used to great effect. Still, Begley admits "we'd prefer an arts centre" for productions such as this.

The show has a magical, fairy-tale quality that will delight children especially. For their enjoyment, there will be a matinee on Saturday at 4:00 p.m.

A juice and cookie table and cash bar for adults will be available at all performances.

Tickets are $3.50 for adults, $2.00 for seniors and children under twelve. Family admission is $10.00. Reservations can be made by calling 284-3243 or 284-3126.

Present Tense needs Lessons

By Peter Mehren, M.A.
Associate of Scar. Campus

Ah, the delights of overactive imaginations! A pair of one-act plays presented in the studio last week at Scarborough included the surrealism of John McNamara's Present Tense and the absurdism of Eugene Ionesco's The Lesson.

Randy Bonk, plays Norm in Present Tense, the normal teenager he is. Bonk did a fine job of showing how a good, active imagination can cause more problems than does anything real. He can fantasize entire disasters upon hearing a single word.

A simplistic rule about acting is "know your lines and don't bump into the furniture." Well, the other cast members knew their lines, and the set remained unbumped; but they seemed to be repeating learned lines, rather than delivering them as though for the first time.

There was something flat in the deliveries of Monika Turi as Ann, the girl of Norm's dreams, and Jim Panes as his pal Jerry.

Ian Morfitt as Doug, Ann's former boyfriend, had a believable self-importance but he seemed exaggerated. Perhaps that's what the director, Laura Lyford, wanted.

Shirley Clunas as The Blonde, delivered her single line with realism and authority, and certainly looked appropiate.

Elise Trojman as Margi, a reporter to whom the Dough in Norm's dreams was going to give private lessons, seemed eager to learn those lessons.

Lyford used the set and lighting well. Divided into Norm's "real" bedroom, complete with Playboy magazines and pictures of Superman and Bogie, and a separate area in which the scenes in Norm's mind were played out, it enabled us to see the shifts between his day, with its happy ending, and the petty demons of his overfertile imagination.

And then there's the absurdist The Lesson, by Eugene Ionesco. It's hard to be sure whether the playwright really hates educators, or if he loved Groucho Marx - who probably hate educators.

In either case, Ian McLeod as The Professor exuded confidence in his knowledge and teaching style. He played his part well.

McLeod's Professor becomes violent and destructive in his desire to get perfection out of his pupil.

The Pupil, played by Julia Maturi, was a delightful simpleton, hoping to get her Doctor's Exams within three months, because she had mastered most of the letters and all of the numbers up to twelve.

Initially an eager cutie, the Pupil became sullen as the Professor became more the tyrant, until his sophistry culminated in reducing the student body to rigor mortis.

Michele D'Cunha played Marie, the maid, with a good underlying menace. How could she disobey, lecture, and finally dominate the Professor? The tiny D'Cunha convinced me that she could, for whatever reason.

Director Gary Harper got good characterizations out of his performers, and gave them enough movement to make a "talky" play seem brisk.
